

The passionate collectors of art and antiques will scour the world for the rare, the wonderful and the secret discovery. The venues they visit are as diverse as the objects they collect — from vacant cruise ship terminals, airplane hangars and modern convention halls to humble churches, schools and outdoor fields. Yet, they all have something in common — they transform on cue to define the personality of each show and to welcome their visitors.

The dealers, all specialists in their respective fields are the resident historians and story tellers in the best sense. They bring objects to life by sharing the history and craftsmanship of an antique or by explaining an up-and-coming artist's sensibility.

As art and objects change hands, their new addresses are not only museums and private collections but also the homes and hearts of new collectors. In the process, the story of each piece is enhanced and the enjoyment of each collector increased.
